Reflective Review

My journey through this subject began with Assessment 1, where I developed market analysis skills and identified opportunities, setting the stage for brand creation in Assessment 2. These insights helped me shape a brand focused on authenticity, sustainability, and craftsmanship.

In Assessment 2, I applied branding theories to create a logo and cohesive identity, balancing creativity with practicality. While I achieved my goals, refining my logo and researching sustainable materials like Piñatex presented challenges.

If I could redo the assessments, I'd seek more iterative feedback during the design process and deepen market research. My advice to future students: focus on your values, embrace feedback, and use this project to tell a story that resonates.
